THAT was a fine combination of sheet and snow we had for Christmas.

The mother of Senator Voorhees is still living in Indiana at the age of ninety.

J. L. M. Levy has been elected to succeed Senator Wade Hampton of South Carolina.

A SUPPLY of Koch's lymph is soon to go to Louisville to be used by the physicians there.

Mr. W. H. Baldwin has sent in his resignation as a member of the Democratic State Central Committee.

Ir reports are true a good deal of bad whiskey is being sold along down the L. & W. railroad in violation of the law. The authorities should look after the guilty parties.

President Harrison, in accordance with the recommendation of the Pan-American Congress, has issued invitations for the first monetary union at Washington on the first Monday in January.

Pursuey Harrison has appointed a very good, yet at the same time a somewhat obscure man, to succeed the late Justice Miller on the Supreme Court bench. Gresham, of Indiana, was the man for the place.

Gross charges have been preferred against Pension Commissioner Raum for his personal conduct in the late letters in Indiana, but a Republican Congress refuses to make an investigation into his conduct.

CLOVERPORT has made some commendable strides in the matter of substantial improvements during the past year, and the outlook is much better for greater and better things in the year to come. The men who work who have the will to enter let every man who has the welfare of the town in heart, exert himself for an increase of business.

Mr. John C. McHenry is a candidate to succeed his father as delegate to the Constitutional Convention from Ohio county. Recognizing the necessary talents in the young man, and through the great interest he felt for his father, it is not likely the people of Ohio will elect young McHenry, although he has two very strong opponents.

The Indians are about to wind up their "war" down here, and submit to peace. Two hundred and fifty of Sitting Bull's band and three hundred of Big Foot's tribe have surrendered. The poor Indians had as well give up their hunting grounds and forever submit to peace with Uncle Sam, or the last mother's son of them will eventually be slaughtered.

President Harrison has issued his proclamation directing the World's Fair to be opened at Chicago, May 3, 1893; and to close the last of October. Ten millions of dollars are to be expended on the exhibition, and the nations of the world are invited to be represented. It will be the biggest thing ever gotten up in this country, or that is likely to be attempted for many years to come.

Gov. Hill of New York, has announced he will be a candidate for re-election in 1892. A large majority of the Democrats all over the country favor the nomination of Grover Cleveland, and unless there is a decided change in public sentiment along this line, nothing will be more certain than the defeat of Gov. Hill before the National Democratic Convention that is to make a nomination in 1892. The candidacy of Gov. Hill can not be more than the Democratic party in the great state of New York.

EX-PRESIDENT GROVER CLEVELAND made another one of his masterly political speeches, before the Tariff Reform Club, in New York last week on the subject of "The Campaign of Protection." With the exception of the fact that the Ex-President has a full of public affairs, and the strong hold he has upon the hearts and minds of the intelligent masses of this country, David B. Hill, nor no other man will be likely to turn him before the National Democratic Convention for the privilege in 1892.

Hon. J. P. Ingalls may be yet returned to the United States Senate from Kansas. With a fair vote in the Kansas Legislature he would be defeated beyond doubt; but that is what he doesn't intend to have. The scheme is to return him or pronounce the Legislature an unconstitutional body because of the presence of 18 members from new counties who have no power to let them have a right to vote. In short, if they vote for Ingalls he will have the right, but have no right to oppose him. What wonderful ideas of constitutionality and justice for a man who goes around spouting about Southern lawlessness! If Mr. Ingalls is defeated we shall hear something from him that will set the Gettysburg from the background.

Dr. C. C. Babbage, of New York, has made a special line on wraps.

If the press of the State is to be rated, with a fair selection of popular journals, the people are greatly disappointed and dissatisfied with the work of the Constitutional Convention. Omnipotent grows come up from all quarters. It was expected that the delegates sent up by the people would strike from the present constitution a few of its features that were objectionable, here and there, in some of its provisions which otherwise seemed to point out as necessary. But contrary to that expectation, the body seems to think its prime duty is to change all things, to revolutionize the government, to have nothing it was before, and to tread in untried and dangerous paths. The people are, however, responsive to the new instrument we have given them. The public, hard to be understood and requiring years of costly judicial experiment to construe. They want nothing of the kind, and if they are left with the power of reflection, its fate may even now be foredoomed.

How beautiful is the conceit of Santa Claus! He is indeed a divinity that always brings joy, and not supreme, war nor pestilence, nor famine, nor ever grinding poverty stays his benevolent hand. He comes as the son of an infant kingly in his young lady pupils at the closing of his school last Wednesday for the holidays.

"Old Probs" hit her this year. Sure we were having white Christmas, and we certainly did. Hardly either, for her Thursday was a scorcher.

Mr. Charles Crawford, manager for the Rock Gap Company in the field, says he has heard no complaint this winter from not having enough gas in the city.

Misses Mary Bickerstaff and Mary McFarland, Long Branch, had quite a number of their friends to partake of an elegant supper with them last Friday evening.

Prof. J. G. Scott received quite a number of calls from the higher classes.

Mr. H. H. Hulme present in the shape of an infant from his young lady pupils at the closing of his school last Wednesday for the holidays.

A trip to Elkhorn and Guston last week secured us several new subscribers. The business of those towns is growing rapidly, from what we could see that day, and everybody is a friend to the news.

On Monday, Dec. 23d, Hilary Rhodes and his wife, right here, opened a new home from Elkhorn in a two-horse wagon. A short distance from Elkhorn they saw some quails cross the road, and having a gun with them, Rhodes got out to shoot them. At the firing of the gun the horses took flight and ran away with Mr. Wright, who stayed in the wagon to hold them. The wagon passed through a stone wall, and the driver and his wife were thrown out. They were unhurt, but not large enough to hold the crowd who came to the inquest, and many stood outside waiting for the result of the examination.

The husband of the accused woman seemed less concerned during the examination than anybody else, and was evidently a man of considerable influence appreciating the serious situation. Dr. W.

Pusey, a magistrate, conducted the inquest. The examination for the Commonwealth was conducted by County Attorney Thomas H. Hamilton. Dr. H.

H. Pusey, of this city, acted in behalf of defense in the absence of Major Kinney. The following is the jury: Samuel L. Johnson, John Johnson, Alvin Adams, George and John Dawson.

The first day of the inquest was spent in examining four of the six physicians who attended the children during different stages of their fatal sickness. The second day was occupied in hearing the evidence of the remaining doctor and the kindred of the accused woman and her husband. The physician's evidence was testimony showing that two physicians had been summarily dismissed by Dr. H. Pusey, because they had not been able to cure the use of Hall's Catarrh Cure.

Death of Marshal Graham.

We sadly chronicle the death of Warden P. Graham, which occurred on Sunday morning, Dec. 28, 1890.

For the last five or six years he had held the position of city marshal. Frail in body, he was a giant in courage. He was absolutely a stranger to fear.

He was a man of the highest character. Even a law-breaker knew it and dared not risk a combat with him. The lawless spirit which slew poor Ed Thompson at Hardinsburg, was cowed and in the presence of Mr. Graham.

REMINISCENCES.

BY AN OLD-TIMER.

NO. IV.

Hardsburg was at that time a small tobacco market. McCarty and associates had given up business. Vivian Daniel and S. V. R. Board were the principal merchants and dealers in tobacco, and they bought but little, perhaps none outside of their customers.

Col. Charles Hambelton and Mrs. Hambelton kept the best hotel in town, and for good, old-fashioned cooking, of the best the county afforded, no man need go further; two Virginians, at least, never failed to do ample justice— one to the turkey, the other to the pig's head, as prepared by the hostess of the Hambelton House.

Although the volume of business was not very large, the town could and did justly claim to have the very best society in the county. The principal of the best the county afforded, no man need go further; two Virginians, at least, never failed to do ample justice— one to the turkey, the other to the pig's head, as prepared by the hostess of the Hambelton House.

John Wright, who was clerk as Captain Joe Allen, for many years clerk of the county court under the old constitution when the officers were appointed; Judge Calhoun and Kincheloe, Jefferson and Frank Peay, Frank Peyton, among the most celebrated lawyers of that day; Col. Alfred Allerton, whose trials became celebrated as the prosecutor of Ward, and subsequently was appointed by President Johnson and went as counsel to Foochow, China, accompanied by Crawford McCarty. One of the most noted persons was Father Taylor, an old-fashioned Methodist minister, who owned and ran a house, still in business, cashing money for a living, and preached for the love of it, and because he felt it his duty to do so. He was exceedingly popular with his flock and was called upon to perform most of the marriage ceremonies in the county—indeed, a good many would scarcely be married unless Father Taylor officiated, and the wife, "chaperoned" to meet him at a number of such appointments. John Wright, who died several years since in Illinois, a former citizen of Cloverport, was a nephew and Mrs. Walter and Mrs. Goff, of Cloverport, are nieces of him. Hon. W. T. Harford, who recently died, was a member of the Constitutional Convention, married a daughter of Father Taylor's. Other prominent citizens were John McCarty, the father of Joe, who represented this county in the Legislature, and of Clinton McCarty, who represented the Fourth district of Louisville in the Legislature, and also the St. Louis, the Clearing House at Louisville, Stephen C. Clark, Vivian Daniel, Philip Lightfoot, Charles Hambleton, Nathan Board and others.

There were many young ladies of beauty, culture and refinement, dignified and attractive in social circles, among whom were the Misses Calhoun, McCarty, Peter King, Goff, Jennings, St. Louis and Hambleton, all of whom it was known to admire. While these excited the usual little jealousies and prejudices between Cloverport and the county seat, it was not permitted to present any obstacle to friendship and social pleasures, and consequently the young people especially were thrown much into each other's society.

The roads of the county were in very bad condition, and in this regard the improvement generally has not been very marked to this day—that from Hardsburg to Cloverport being perhaps the worst continuous ten miles in the county, and during winter and spring, when the roads were covered over, this road planters would manage to bring their tobacco to market, many of them camping out on the way and in town, regardless of the weather. The subsequent building of the turnpike road, rough though it be, and at a cost far greater than it should have been, was a tardy remedy in part for the evil so long existing, and it is much to the detriment of the business interests of the town and county that others have not made.

Stephensport, the only other shipping point in the county, was about as inaccessible on account of bad roads, as Cloverport, and the location of the latter, together with other important advantages, gave it definitely the preference.

Holt's Bottom has not improved and settled up to any extent. Daniel Stephens, who owned a large body of land here, then lived at the cross-roads, some distance from Hardsburg, and shortly afterward erected a handsome brick residence, now the Thomas Holt's farm, where he died a year ago. No road had been opened from Cloverport to that locality, the people relying upon the river for getting to market, or a very poor road over the hill to Stephensport.

Quite a business along the river was cutting cord-wood and delivering it to wood yards situated at convenient points where wood flats or boats were loaded, and from these flats stevedores obtained the wood and took it to the river in boats when going up stream to prevent delay; a man accompanying them, and when unloaded the wood was paid for and the boats turned adrift in charge of the man, who steered by means of oars and landed them ready for the next steamer, to be loaded again.

On the river, the men who worked lay alongside to take the wood up. These operations were called "wooding," and the price paid was $1.50 to $2.50 per cord. Large boats, such as the General LaFayette, Diana, L. E. Shortwell, Eclipse, and boats of that class, would take twenty to forty cords at one loading. Very little coal was then to be had at any point between Louisville and New Orleans, and wood yards were kept up all along the Mississippi river.

Considerable trading was carried on in horses and mules, which were brought in large numbers here and shipped South to supply the demand for cotton and sugar plantations. Dr. J. H. Thomas and Dudley Hambleton operated largely, and made one or more trips every season, as did the Mathisons, of Mt. Merino, and others, and turkeys in large quantities. Beef cattle were also shipped South, and Texas cattle were brought in large numbers to be fed here for market until a law was passed prohibiting the same being communicated to Kentucky cattle.

Flat-boats were in use at that time. Pitching coal and produce of all kinds were taken in large quantities on flat-boats, floated down by the current. These flat-boats were equipped with side cars, or sweeps, a steering car and gongor, so as to propel or guide the flat as circumstances required. A skillful pilot was required for each boat, and men, and a crew of ten to twenty men, according to the size of the boat, engaged for the trip. A cabin, with bunks for sleeping on, was fitted up cooking utensils provided, and a supply of provisions taken on board, in charge of a regular cook for the crew. Upon arrival at New Orleans or at any other place, the cargo disposed of, and the boats sold as old lumber, the boat deck passage on some of the fine Louisville and New Orleans boats then running, and of such magnitude, that this travel that the boats always made special efforts to secure it. In traveling on steamboats, the men were to be on sight of one of these (so-called) "broadboats." The South via New Orleans was then the only outlet to Eastern or foreign markets. Drinkwater, McFall, Weatherhead and Patterson were regular flat-boat pilots, and commanded good prices for their services.

John Vest, who was clerking for Mr. Miller, and his brother and Fred Walker afterward embarked in the hophole trade, and for several years did a lively business in that line in connection with the grocery business here.

Everybody who has used it knows that old San's Catarach is the standard remedy of its kind in the market. Price only 25 cents.

But we often wondered what induced Dr. Bull to invent his celebrated Baby Syrup, but we understand now, that he was a man of much man.

The Classification of Cities.

My sermons were half disengaged, and my parishioners thought I could live only a few weeks. I took five bottles of Dr. King's New Discovery and am sound and well, gaining 26 lbs. in weight."

Arthur Love, Manager of Love's Funny Folks Combination, writes: "After a thorough trial and convincing evidence, I am confident that Dr. King's New Discovery is the best remedy for the cure of scrofula, and when everything else fails, especially cold weather prevailing there, a perfectly safe and harmless remedy, yet so powerful that it has never failed to cure Blood Poison. It always cures Scrofula, if taken before some vital part is so seriously impaired as to render a cure impossible. It relieves Mercurial Rheumatism, and cures all sorts of Erupsions, Pimplies, Blotches, etc., by eliminating the bad blood. Dr. King's S. The Western Tobacco Association Dissolved.

The Western Tobacco Association has no longer any official existence. As is well known, the Western Tobacco Association was the corporation composed of the allied tobacco warehouses of Louisville and Cincinnati, a combination which has recently occupied so much attention in the public press and the public opinion.

Opposition to it on the part of the growers caused the meeting at Lexington and the succeeding one at Louisville, and the projected co-operative warehouse in this city.

For some time the consolidation project has been languishing. It has encountered two obstacles, the scarcity of capital and the strong opposition of the tobacco growers. The stock subscription books were to be opened in New York city, but owing to the troubles in the money market it was decided to wait until funds became abundant. But no time is yet known when it will be possible to do so, and it will be for a long time, the suitable occasion for taking subscriptions did not arrive.

Under these circumstances the warehousemen have deemed it best to drop the consolidation. Deeds transferring the property of the individual warehouses to the Union National Tobacco Association have been prepared some time ago, but they had never been filed. On Tuesday these deeds were indorsed and returned by the president of the Western Tobacco Association to each warehouseman. Therefore all the latter are now operating in the same old way and will continue to do so in the same old way in the same old warehouse.

The tobacco sales closed yesterday for the holidays, and will not be resumed until January 5, this ending the tobacco year of 1890. The total sales during the year were 144,657 hogsheads, the largest number on record for this or any other market. The nearest approach to it was made by Louisville in 1887, when 135,101 hogsheads were sold. Last year the sales were 135,702 hogsheads.

Easy expectation, increased power of the lungs and the enjoyment of rest, are the rewards, upon taking Dr. Bull's Cough Syrup, on all constitutions.

Cuts, cuts and other wounds, can be cured in a short time by the use of Saponin Oil, the greatest cure on earth for pain. Price 25 cents.
